DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 6-9 and 11-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kirsch [US 5,831,502] in view of Fausch [US 6,034,582].

Regarding claims 6-11, Kirsch discloses a relay [figure 1] comprising:

- a base [1] defining a base plane;
- at least one pair of opening and closing spring contacts [figure 1], each including a passive [35'] and an active spring contact [35], being secured to the base standing essentially perpendicular to the base plane and having an end remote from base at a contact portion;
- an actuating slide [18] movable parallel to the base plane to act on each active spring contact and configured to act on one of the spring contacts of the pair of opening spring contacts at a different distance (plane) from the base than the distance from the base at which the slide act on the other of the spring contacts.

Kirsch disclose the instant claimed invention except for a magnet system including a coil, a core and an armature to engage the actuating slide.

Art Unit: 2832

Fausch discloses a relay [figure 1] having a plurality of contact sets actuated by a slide [59] engaged by an armature [69] of a magnet system.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the magnet system design of Fausch with the actuator of Kirsch in order to provide controllable actuation force.

The specific spring configuration, operation status and bias would have been an obvious design consideration based on the intended operation to be controlled by the relay.

Regarding claims 12-13, Kirsch further discloses the slide including a barrier separating the contacts [figure 1].

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 6-13 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
